

Suspending a Deadbeat's Drivers License

Illinois law¹ gives judges the power to suspend the driver's license of an obligor who falls more than 90 behind in child support payments. The suspension can be flexible enough to permit the obligor to drive to and from work, if necessary, but nowhere else. Also, penalties can start to accrue on the unpaid support on a daily (rather than monthly) basis.

The government is also required to suspend an obligor's passport when certain criteria are met.²

If you're facing collections action and need help, call our office. Our attorney have the knowledge and experience to obtain the results you seek.

This article was written by the law office of Cowell Taradash, P.C., whose attorneys are familiar with the latest court decisions, recent changes in the law and even the tendencies of many judges. We can help. Contact us at 866.987.6723 or info@illinoisdivorce.com.